ALICE WAKEFIELD
KNITTER

Alice Wakefield travelled the world working for the Defense Department for over 40 years. She learned to knit from her mother at the age of 5. Knitting and needlework were great projects for stress relief during those long trips abroad. She started knitting baby blankets for her own children and then other family members and friends; over 300 in the last 35 years. She now knits more artistic pieces. She gets inspiration for her work from locations in Abiquiu and Taos NM, Alaska, Arizona, and California. Recently retired, she now lives in Portal year round and participates in other community projects.
